A design-build team led by Bluewater Studio is engaged in developing the new Cretaceous Crossroads exhibit at the Museum of the Rockies (MOR).

This 2,300 square foot permanent exhibit will feature engaging, science-based presentations of mounted dinosaurs and marine reptiles, nests, eggs, micro-vertebrates, touchable interactives, and engaging media components.

Continuing its many years as a center of active research and exploration, the MOR paleontology department has amassed one of the largest collections of North American dinosaurs in the world, much of which has been found in Montana.

Cretaceous Crossroads will feature more than 100 specimens from the MOR collections that have not been previously on display.
